About the Stewards

Welcome home!

Megazord here. I wasn't supposed to take care of this page, but I thought I'd give it a try, just to have a first rough material to work on later. Don't pay attention to grammar mistakes, it shall be rewritten later.

Hundreds of faeries come each year to Folleterre, wether it is to reconnect with nature, to feel at home, to escape from the heteronormative world, find all the values and radical tenderness the community can offer; perhaps to enjoy their only holidays of the year. New faeries can sometimes experience a queer family for the first time!

Serving the land

Being a steward is mainly about serving the land, and making everything works for all the faeries who come to Folleterre. It's a very fullfilling commitment! And for all the faeries who feel at home in Folleterre, a very important one indeed.

A good steward keeps the good of the land and the community in mind. It can imply many responsabilities: validating calls for gatherings, deciding a planning for the year, handling budget and administrative work for the association, insuring efficient communication, managing dramas... can be a lot! The shiniest steward should probably listen to their energy level, and feel free to get involved into a decision, or to take a little break if needed.
